Sex-mad strangler brutally murders 13 women — and he's still on the prowl, say cops

POLICE examine site where body of Frances Brown was found along the Genesee River in November 1987.

MOBILE crime van investigators crowded area along the Genesee River in Rochester, N.Y., where a mad killer has dumped most of his victims' bodies.

By DICK DONOVAN

A veil of terror has fallen over Rochester, N.Y., where a sex-mad strangler prowls the city's night shadows — leaving a grisly trail of dead and naked females to mark his murderous contempt for women!

So far, the nude or semi-nude bodies of 13 women, most of them prostitutes, have been dumped in the city's rivers and wooded areas.

Most of the brutal strangulation murders occurred last October and November. But cops say one dates back as far as late 1987.

"What we may have here is a homicidal maniac with an overpowering hatred for women in general and hookers in particular," said one detective assigned to the case.

The latest victim in the growing string of murders was identified as 28-year-old Elizabeth Gibson, who lived on the city's seedy northwest side where the bodies of five other women were found.

"The autopsy revealed that she was strangled," Rochester Police Sgt. Mir Roland Marchetti told The NEWS. And, like most of the others, she was a prostitute.

"Actually, 10 of the victims were prostitutes and all but two were cocaine addicts."

Rochester police and Monroe County sheriff's deputies are searching for a woman who may have been another of the strangler's victims. She is a known hooker who's been missing for several weeks.

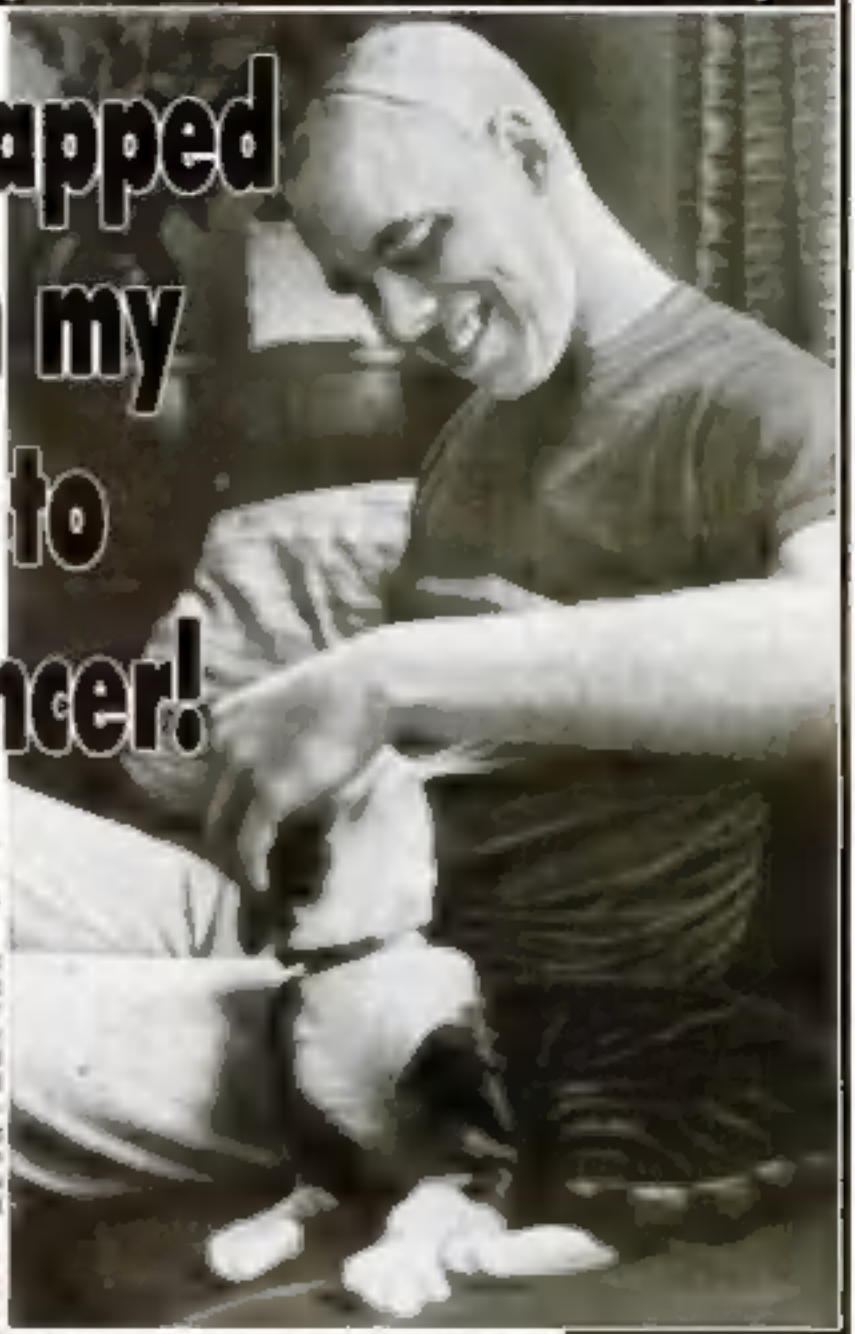
The most bizarre operation in medical history!

Doctors wrapped my brain in my stomach — to cure my cancer!



ON THE road to health, Glenn Huckfield plays with his cat as he recuperates at home after the lifesaving surgery.

By MARTHA ATKINS

Glenn Huckfield had just weeks to live when doctors pulled off the strangest operation in medical history and wrapped his brain in his stomach to cure his cancer!

The 25-year-old college student was suffering from a deadly brain tumor that was slowly eating away his life. But by wrapping the malignant tumor in sensitive tissue from the stomach, surgeons were able to bypass a blood vessel blockage that had prevented the anticancer drugs from getting through! Enough tissue would be left for doctors to remake a functional stomach.

"When they explained the operation I was flabbergasted," said Glenn. "I would be a guinea pig but it was my last card. The risks involved were plain but it worked. It was a miracle!

"It was hard to believe that a week earlier I was paralyzed and thought I was going to die. It was fantastic just to be able to move my leg again.

"Looking back over the past year I can scarcely believe that this has happened."

The courageous young man from London, England, was studying to become a teacher when he suffered what at first seemed to be a migraine headache. But the pain persisted and he began losing control of his right leg.

Doctors discovered a tumor the size of a golf ball in his brain. Surgeons removed as much of the tumor as they could, but Glenn's condition worsened. He began losing control of his right arm and leg and had difficulty speaking.

Glenn underwent radiation treatments and had everything in line for when tragedy struck.

"When they told me I had cancer I was shocked," said Glenn. "I was admitted to the hospital and they began a course of radiation."

At first, radiation treatment seemed to help but a few months later he had a relapse. Surgeons wanted to open up the brain again and remove as much of the tumor as possible, but Glenn refused. He was afraid of losing his memory and ability to speak.

Then his doctors told him about the operation.

Doctors used the stomach membrane to deliver the cancer-killing drugs to the tumor.

Within two days Glenn could move his arm and leg. He's now able to walk.

"I've been given a new lease on life," said Glenn.

Time capsule reveals incredible predictions of the . . .

Frontier psychic

INCREDIBLY accurate predictions by psychic Susanna Morgan were found in a copper box.

She foretold these events — 100 years before they happened!

By TOM BENEDICT

A buried "time capsule," found in a forgotten ghost town of the mid-1800s, contains a handwritten list of future events — and, so far, each of the eerie predictions has come to pass!

The incredible look into the future was penned more than a century ago by Susanna Morgan, a widowed seamstress in the town of Hell-Bent, Ariz., once a flourishing southwestern waypoint and supply center for miners bound for the gold fields of California.

The time capsule — a 6-foot-square strong box made of copper — was found by Cameron Hunter, a tourist from Wales who was using a metal detector to search for old coins and relics.

An inscription on the box carried a simple message: "This gift to the future was left here by the people of Hell-Bent on the 9th day of August, 1897."

"There were items of clothing, some leather goods, toy soldiers and tete-a-bete in the box," Hunter said. "But the most incredible thing of all was a rolled sheet of yellowed parchment tied with a leather thong to a photograph of the seamstress.

"The parchment was a list, handwritten in ink, of what was going to happen in the future. As I read it, I couldn't believe my eyes. Every single prediction had actually happened.

"She predicted there would be two great wars involving the nations of the world. There's no doubt she was referring to World War I and II.

"She said the next century would see men flying through the air in machines that traveled faster than sound and, unbelievable as it seems, she said men would leave his footprints on the surface of the moon in the late 1900s.

"She said that a large city would be destroyed in California by an earthquake in the first decade of the 1900s. And that's exactly what happened to San Francisco in 1906.

"She predicted that 'a young Irish Catholic' would be elected President of the United States and that he would be 'shot dead by a nondescript fanatic who will never stand trial for his foul deed.'

"Of course, she had to be referring to Lee Harvey Oswald's assassination of President Kennedy and his own murder at the hands of Jack Ruby in 1963."

Hunter said there were several other predictions dealing with major world events. Among them was the Great Depression, the sinking of "a majestic ship of the sea" (Titanic) and the creation of an "unholy weapon of war that can kill millions of people in an instant" (a nuclear bomb).

"But there was one entry I hope to God will come to pass," Hunter said. "She spoke of a great peace coming over the world after an encounter with people from 'the stars.'

"Somehow this woman looked into the future and saw what all of us are hoping for most — peace on Earth."

AIDS VICTIMS TURNED INTO HUMAN GUINEA PIGS!

By BEATRICE DEXTER

Cruel Cuban officials have found a way to solve the AIDS problem — they're forcing AIDS victims to be human guinea pigs as part of a massive research campaign to wipe out the disease.

Ailing men and women in Cuba are sent to a concentration camp where they are drained of their blood, pumped full of experimental drugs and operated on without anesthesia. They are locked away and forced to live like lepers in grim stainless steel and glass cells, with no direct contact with nurses or doctors.

So horrifying is the plight of AIDS victims in Castro's country that human rights activists around the world have complained, but heartless party officials in the Communist nation are determined to use the victims for medical research. "At night we can hear them screaming," said a young mechanic who lives near the walled-off Los Cocos concentration camp.

HELLISH hospital is located in the eastern part of Cuba.

"The guards who get away tell us they force men and women at gunpoint to offer themselves up for the experiments," the mechanic said.

Officials who run the hellish hospital admit they're using inmates' bodies as living labs for bizarre medical research. But they offer no apologies for the shocking policy.

"Let's face it, these are drug addicts and homosexuals," said Octavio Miguel Rivera, a bureaucrat in Cuba's hospital system. "We don't see anything wrong with using them in experiments on human bodies since they're going to die anyway."

Cuban officials have been secretly rounding up AIDS victims and sending them to Los Cocos since 1986, when the first case of the deadly disease was discovered on the island nation.

For the past two years Cuban health authorities have tested everyone between the ages of 15 and 60 for the deadly AIDS virus. Those who test positive are sent to Los Cocos — whether they want to go or not.

The mechanic, who was unwilling to give his name, says one AIDS patient got away from the barbed wire-enclosed facility in November 1989 and hid in the house of a neighbor. The man described days and nights of endless torture at Los Cocos.

He told his rescuers that each morning hundreds of AIDS victims are forced to endure — and refuse to give them any treatment.

Hundreds of patients have their blood drained for bizarre medical experiments

As the AIDS virus ravages their immune systems, the patients are stricken by a variety of infections. But fearful medical staff only take notes from their veins, poke needles into their skin and study the progress of their killer disease.

"The patients are given three meals a day, but that's the only kindness they know. The rest of the time is pure torture for them."

Mayor orders drug users shot to death!

By IRWIN FISHER

The mayor of a small Brazilian town has taken the law into his own hands, personally ordering the execution of every drug peddler and user in town!

Twenty-two cocaine and marijuana users have been identified and shot to date. Mayor Jaime Gomes estimates that as many as 200 more hopheads live in his city — and vows to continue his "eradication program" until all of them are dead.

"This is war and I mean to fight it to the bitter end," the 58-year-old politician and anti-drug campaigner told newsmen who visited his office in Marabe, Brazil.

"Drugs are destroying my city and my country. The federal government won't act. So what am I supposed to do — sit back and watch?"

MARABA is in central Brazil.

Federal authorities in Brasilia, the nation's capital, refused to comment on the mayor's self-declared war on drugs, but privately confirmed that they do not plan to intervene.

Meanwhile, public opinion polls indicate that 87 percent of Brazilian citizens approve of Gomes' actions.

Inevitably, Mayor Gomes has stated that drug dealers and users are fair game for police officers and citizens alike. Trials are not necessary, he said, "because we know who these fiends are and we know what they do."

Resistance from drug lords has been minimal, possibly because drug sales and profits in Maraba, a city of less than 10,000, are small.

If they do decide to fight back, Mayor Gomes says he is prepared to bring in mercenaries and hired guns to keep them at bay.

"Somebody has to take a stand," he said. "Take a look at what is happening in the United States. The most powerful country in the world is going to hell in a handbasket because nobody up there has the guts to tell those drug people, 'We're through.'"

A drug user is executed.

"Ex-Truck Driver Gets $21,108 a Month Doing What You Aren't"

By Neville G. Levin - Special Feature Writer

Orlando, FL. – "In only 6 months I took in a whopping $126,650 – and I can take any average person and show them exactly how to do it," declares Lawrence Tabak.

Tabak began a few years ago with humble beginnings as a truck driver. But the cash didn't start to roll in until he discovered the little known money making secret.

"It made at least $15,000 in my spare time alone."

Now, in a dual bonus, Tabak has begun to train everyday people, just like himself, how to duplicate his new system.

Already the results have been astounding. For example, one person in St. Augustine wrote that they had made $8,500 in an unbelievable 11 days!

"I'm no smarter than you," he states, "only I have discovered an amazing wealth system."

"Put my program into action," he says, "and you are almost driving your sparkling Mercedes, BMW, or Cadillac. You dazzle your friends with your new dream home. And people see you enjoying life a champion."

"You can really be the kind of person that you always wanted to be."

And what's more," he adds, "to make an extra $30,000 my way, requires little effort!"

"Look, there's no magic wand, and poof . . . you're rich. It does take time and work. But it's worth it. In fact," he adds, "I only want people who are willing to put forth some effort to use it."

Now, you may not make as much as Tabak, but if you are a real "Go-Getter," you will make even more. And above all, the nice part is that you win the respect of your friends and family.

Tabak has offered to send further details to readers who want to learn his new wealth system. Simply send your name and address to:

Granny, 94, pregnant for 61 years!

By JACK ALEXANDER

Doctors were astonished when they examined a 94-year-old granny and discovered she had been pregnant — for 61 years.

The amazing medical phenomenon is so rare, say experts, that there have only been 15 documented cases in the past 30 years.

Surgeons decided to examine a large lump in the unidentified old woman's stomach while she was in a hospital for pneumonia.

A scan revealed the lump contained the skeleton of the baby she never gave birth to.

said Dr. Daniel Miller of Georgetown University Hospital in Washington, D.C.

"Her 73-year-old son, with whom she lived, recalled she had told him when he was about 12 that he would soon have a brother or sister — but he never did," said Dr. Miller.

The son told doctors his mother had been fat, but that she gradually lost weight and had not been a doctor for years.

It is a rare occurrence of pregnancies when the fetus develops outside the womb, Dr. Miller wrote in the New England Journal of Medicine.

It was the result of an abnormal pregnancy outside the woman's uterus that had continued in the abdomen for several months, he said.

The few cases on record were discovered during surgery or post-mortems.

This fiend drinks his victims' blood!

Vampire rapist may soon be out of jail — & on the prowl again!

RAPIST John Crutchley was jailed in 1966 after he assaulted a teenage girl, drained her blood and drank it.

A terrifying vampire rapist who drinks the blood of his victims could be roaming the streets again soon — looking for a fresh supply of blood.

John Crutchley, a 39-year-old engineer, was sent to prison in 1966 for kidnapping, torturing and raping a teenage girl in Titusville, Fla.

By JACK ALEXANDER

Using a hypodermic needle, the victim drained nearly half of her blood and drank it during the 12-hour ordeal. "He took so much of my blood, I was out of it," the 19-year-old victim later told cops.

The wild-eyed weirdo told police he had been drinking the blood of his wife and girlfriends for 20 years. Crutchley was sentenced to 25 years to prison for rape, but with time served behind bars, he could be free in two years.

Cops are working desperately to make sure the real-life Dracula stays behind bars.

"He has a lust for sex and blood," said one investigator. "Some people get high on drugs or booze. With him, it's blood."

Crutchley is a prime suspect in the unsolved murders of five Florida women in 1968 and a former girlfriend, Deborah Pinjuhn, 12 years ago.

Doctors said the 19-year-old girl he raped four times in 1966 would have died from loss of blood if she hadn't escaped from his evil clutches.

The gutsy victim, naked and bound hand and foot, escaped out a bathroom window while Crutchley was at work.

Crutchley denied raping the teen, who was hospitalized with wounds after the gruesome nightmare, but he admitted draining her blood.

Psychiatrists say Crutchley is a "sexual sadist." He blames pornography for his obsession with bizarre sexual rituals.

Male Attorney Norm Wolfinger fears for the safety of others if Crutchley is released from prison.

Suicide was a loser in life — and in death

By PETE COOKE

After a life of failures, Jerry Olson killed himself so his heart could be used to save his dying brother, but Olson's suicide outside a hospital emergency room went unnoticed and his ultimate sacrifice was all for nothing.

Jerry Olson

Bob Olson

"His main purpose for committing suicide at the hospital was to make his heart available for his brother. Unfortunately, he failed," said Roland Olson, one of the dead man's older brothers.

Jerry Olson, a 48-year-old unemployed bartender, hoped to donate his heart in order to save the life of his brother, Bob Olson, 56, who has been on a transplant waiting list for three years.

Police in Tamarac, Fla., near Fort Lauderdale, said Jerry drove his van up to the emergency room entrance of University Community Hospital and parked. He left a note on the dashboard telling doctors he wanted to donate his heart to his brother, then he shot himself in the head with a .38-caliber pistol.

But no one heard the shot and Jerry's suicide wasn't discovered for at least ten minutes when a nurse walked by and saw the man slumped over the wheel of his van. A desperate attempt to revive Olson failed and doctors said the man's heart could not be salvaged for a transplant.

"He thought of me in his last thoughts," said Bob Olson, who lives in Belvedere, Ill., and who suffers from a heart disease that will kill him unless he gets a transplant. "He wanted somebody benefiting from his death. I love my brother. I'm going to miss him."

Relatives said Jerry's life was a succession of missed opportunities and dismal failures.

"I think he probably was suicidal during anything he wanted to do," Jerry's brother Roland said.

But in the end, Jerry was a divorced bartender who had been out of work for a year and who was living in his van after an argument with his sister whose house he'd stayed.

"I'm tired of everyone saying how much talent I've got," Jerry said in a letter to his daughter. "Uncle Bob's got everything to live for! I figure I could do more good for him than myself.

"I'm sorry it had to come to this, Honey, but lately there's been too many downs and no ups for me on this roller coaster ride of life," said the letter found in Jerry's van.

GURU GOOFS!

He flies through two walls — but gets stuck in third!

An East Indian guru stunned the world's scientists by flying through two walls before he lost concentration and got stuck in a third!

"Most of his face and his left hand cleared the surface but the rest of his body is trapped in the wall," Dr Joshi Gayar, the parapsychological researcher, told newsmen in Calcutta.

"He's on his own now," continued the expert. "If he can't get out of this by himself he's going to stay in there forever. There's nothing we can do to help him." The mind-blowing drama unfolded after Hindu holy man Kanet Kanal, 48, agreed to demonstrate his ability to fly for short distances and go through walls like a ghost before a gathering of scientists in Calcutta.

The guru reportedly went into a trance and flew through two concrete walls surrounding the Indian Paranormal Research Institute without incident. But as his head by something caused him to lose his concentration and he got stuck in the third wall that was described as being six feet thick.

"There were over 200 newsmen and researchers present but the silence was eerie — you could literally have heard a pin drop," said Dr Gayar.

"Something had obviously gone wrong but we were powerless to do anything about it. We tried to communicate with the guru but he cannot speak.

"We think that his molecules merged with those of the wall. And if that is the case, he's as hard and lifeless as brick."

The guru remains in the wall just north of Calcutta and is under constant guard to prevent sightseers from tampering with the exposed portions of his fingers and face.

There was some discussion of dismantling the wall to get the guru out. But the scientists who were consulted about the matter unanimously agreed that such a move could kill the guru.

"This is a tragedy of the highest magnitude," said Dr. Gayar.

"Our only consolation is that the guru knew what he was getting into before he agreed to fly through the wall. This is no game or parlor trick."

God didn't make women to pilot jets, says preacher

The head of Canada's Bible-thumping Christian Heritage Party says God put women on earth to have babies — and He definitely doesn't want them flying jets!

"One sees the role of women as giving and nurturing life," Ed Van Wolfschlarg told reporters in Edmonton, Alberta. A woman who climbs into the cockpit of a modern jet fighter is only going to hurt herself, Van Wolfschlarg added.

"Physically, the G-forces in one conducive to a woman who would like to bear a child," he said.

But a Canadian Air Force spokeswoman said that's nonsense.

"You can look at the women in the U.S. space shuttle program. The G-forces endured by the female crew members are far greater than any pilots experience," said Major Jan Martinson.

Daredevil actor Peter O'Toole risked his life to save 12 terrified kids from a raging fire — then leaped into an icy river the very next day to pull a drowning man to safety!

But the Lawrence of Arabia star rushed to the rescue, dashing into the roaring fire and squeezing through a window to join the screaming schoolkids inside the blazing car.

Couple Draws Up

WORLD'S WACKIEST MARRIAGE CONTRACT

Bride promises not to get fat, & groom vows he won't go bald!

GOOD ALL 'happiness contract' drawn up between Andrew Fry and his bride-to-be Gilly Clark is legally binding and even provides for divorce if rules are broken too often

By ANN HUGHEY

A loving couple decided [redacted] out [redacted] marital problems [redacted] they tie the knot — so they've drawn up an agreement that says he can't go bald and she can't get fat!

Andrew Fry and his bride-to-be Gilly Clark have hired a lawyer to draw up a legally binding "happiness contract" that calls for fines every time one of them breaks a clause in the agreement. It even lets them get a divorce if one of them breaks the rules too many times.

"We know all the things that irritated us most about the other's behaviour," said Andrew. "So to make the marriage work we called in a lawyer to draw up the agreement listing all the things we can't do."

Andrew's list for his future wife includes the following requirements. She has to:

- Learn to cook gourmet meals
- Quit smoking in bed
- Give up being her fragrantable
- Stop wearing his pullover sweaters.
- Never get fat.

And Gilly has her own list of musts. She says that because Andrew [redacted] drew isn't perfect either, he'll have to abide by the following rules if he expects to stay married to her:

- Limit his time in the bathroom to five minutes.
- Keep his tools where they belong.
- Give up his midnight pottering around the house.
- Hang on to his hair.

"He starts doing odd jobs around the house at midnight and the noise drives me crazy," said Gilly.

"And I'm insisting that he doesn't go bald before he's 55," she continued. "That's super hair to me. He must get treatment immediately if he starts to lose his hair."

The Colchester, England, couple hope their contract will help them to avoid problems since they both know what's expected of them. But if they do happen to slip up, they'll have to fork over $7.50 every time they break one of the rules.

And if they break them too often, it could be grounds for divorce. But the two think everything is going to work out just fine.

Here are MY predictions for the 1990s

I think I'm gonna throw up if I hear one more idiot egghead predict doom and gloom for the 1990s, or one more bleeding-heart liberal who says every American will be a Save the Whales goofball by the end of this decade.

MY AMERICA

By ED ANGER

Let's face it, friends. In January 1980, I predicted that Ron Reagan would be elected our President by a landslide and would turn the country's economic fortunes around for years to come. Back then I was called a fool.

I predicted that Americans would flock back to church and family. People laughed — but once again the stats prove I was right.

I predicted that the godless Congress would be rotting for their lives by the end of the 1990s — and the newspapers said you I was right on the money there, too.

So with that solid track record in mind, here's a list of MY predictions for the 1990s.

● Say anywhere to Jap cars. President Bush will outlaw the import of Honda Toyotas and the rest of the bunch that ring his second term in 1996. American car sales will boom.

● Those wonderful, good old-fashioned hookers hassles for women will be all the rage in 1994.

● Does will fund a drug that cures AIDS in everybody but homosexuals — because they have a different kind of blood running through their veins.

● Millions of working women will return to their rightful role as housewives and mothers — replacing more and far all that st's a man's world out there.

● Right abortion stoppers will snap up American-made gadgets like hearses — and American businesses will find themselves raking in the bucks.

● The drug plague will end with a bang in 1998 when we lob a few nuclear bombs into the cocaine and marijuana jungles of South America. When with all the radiation, the creeps won't be able to grow bananas — much less any child-killing dope.

● American flag sales will skyrocket by 1999 as the biggest wave of patriotism since 1776 sweeps the country.

● Fidel Castro will croak and won't be around to celebrate the turn of the century. Cubans in America will flock back to their homeland.

● The biggest garbage craze of the 90s will be gold old cans and bras for men and long dresses for women. You won't see a punk rocker in the bunch.

● China will become our best buddy when we get all those perky Chinese to work by speedrippling our import rules and favourites.

So there you have 'em — MY predictions for the 1990s. I was right about the 80s and I'm right about the 90s.

You can take that to the bank.

. . . as 200 horrified nature lovers watch!

The devoted bird-watchers had flocks to the hilly Lizard peninsula in Cornwall, England, in the hopes that they'd catch a glimpse of the tiny American gray-cheeked thrush as it completed its 3,000-mile migration.

"It was just horrible," said Sonia Walsh. "I couldn't believe my eyes when I saw that cat pounce on that poor defenseless bird just as it was about to break out in song.

"We'd been waiting for hours for the bird to arrive. It was something that you can wait an entire lifetime for and never see."

As the avid bird-watchers were all expectantly waiting for the tiny thrush's arrival, Rhoda the Persian cat was also lying in wait. She was crouched down behind a nearby hedge ready to make her move.

Suzie Walsh: "I couldn't believe my eyes when I saw that cat pounce on that poor defenseless bird just as it was about to break out in song."

Then, as the bird-watchers watched in horror and disbelief as the big, greedy cat swallowed the helpless bird.

"All that was left were a few gray feathers lying on the ground," said Sir Sidney Farquahar.

"And that horrid cat was just sitting there licking her chops with a really smug look on her face."

Zoos and aviaries have paid up to $10,000 for one of these birds, said Miss Walsh.

GAL EATS HERSELF TO DEATH!

By STU RICHARDS

A 47-year-old woman loaded a shopping cart with groceries and then ate herself to death in the store's parking lot!

Carmela Massari was pronounced dead on the asphalt less than 25 feet from the entrance to Giovanni's supermarket in Parma, Italy.

It was initially believed that the 580-pound woman suffered a heart attack during the massive pig-out. But an autopsy report revealed that her death was the result of internal bleeding "caused by the rupture of her severely stretched stomach."

"Her stomach popped like a too-inflated [illegible]," coroner Cesare Milani told reporters. "She ate enough pork sausage alone to fell a horse."

We also found other foods — including chicken, beef and seafood — in her abdominal cavity. This woman clearly ate herself to death."

Witnesses couldn't have agreed more. They said Mrs. Massari entered the supermarket alone around 6 p.m. and loaded up a cart like food was going out of style.

According to the pathologist who found on her register receipt, the woman bought five [illegible] pork sausages, two roasted chickens and a pair of [illegible] hams.

She also picked up two jars of olives, five cans of sardines, four boxes of chocolate eclairs and a can opener.

"She ate two sausages and a baked chicken while she was standing in the check-out line," said [illegible] Latino Bergin.

Coroner Mario Oliva added: "After she paid for her groceries and left the store, she rested down on the stand on the curb and opened and ate two hams.

"We weighed her for the next 20 or 30 minutes until she had polished off everything in the cart. Then she started gagging and fell down in the parking lot.

"We called an ambulance but by the time it got there she was dead."

Mrs. Massari's best friend, Selluri, said the lady never married and lived to eat.

"She was real serious about her food," said Selluri.

Nation's oldest murder mystery solved?

RUSTY handgun like this one was found in the mud at the bottom of a river, after it was allegedly dumped there 54 years ago.

Sheriff says he's found gun used to kill cop in 1935

By JOE HELMER

Dedicated Sheriff Anthony Ramonte waded through the muck and goo of a muddy river bottom to recover the rusty remains of a .32-caliber pistol — and unravel a murder mystery that has baffled lawmen for 54 years!

The crafty cop is convinced he now knows who gunned down Newport, Wash., town marshal George Cavell way back in 1935.

And Ramonte is determined to bring the suspect to trial — even though the guy is now 84 years old!

"Just because the kook is old doesn't mean we should let him get away with murder," the sheriff said.

America's oldest active murder investigation began here in the Great Depression when Marshal Cavell caught two crooks terrorizing area dairy — and one of them shot him four times.

A short time later, an informant told police a man named Clyde Rainbo, a police detective from nearby Spokane, had gunned Cavell down.

But Spokane police kept the information secret, and interest in the crime slowly died away.

Then, along came Anthony Ramonte. While researching old homicides for his master's thesis, the avid Pend Oreille County sheriff found the file on the Cavell killing and set out to solve mystery's trail.

Ramonte was tipped off by retired Spokane policeman who provided startling new evidence that Rainbo masterminded the dairy robbery and shot down the marshal.

The former cop told Ramonte that after the murder that a fellow policeman was in trouble. They said their captain gave them a .32-caliber pistol and ordered them to get rid of it.

The officers pointed out the spot where they'd flung the gun into the raging Spokane River. And when the water receded during a dry spell, Ramonte stomped across the muddy river bottom till he found what was left of the pistol wedged in the rocks.

The sheriff then set out to find Rainbo, who had reported his .32-caliber pistol stolen just days after the marshal's murder. But when he found the 89-year-old ex-cop in Montana, Rainbo refused to talk to him.

The oldster's attorney says his client denies any role in the killing — but Ramonte is convinced he's fetched his man.

Now, he says, the problem is rounding up enough hard evidence to bring the former detective to trial.

By SUSAN JAMISON

First-time dad Lloyd Poulton was jealous when his wife paid more attention to their newborn son than to him — so he bit the baby on the face, the hands, and the feet and put him in her water to make him scream!

The infant's ordeal went on for several weeks before the Canadian boy's mom discovered what was going on. She left her husband. Poulton, 38, pleaded guilty to assault causing bodily harm to his three-week-old baby and got a 90-day jail sentence.

"The mother thought it was a skin condition at first and a doctor prescribed a moisturizer for chapped skin," said Gordon Wong, the prosecutor who convinced the Calgary, Alberta, family court. "Then she got suspicious and confronted her husband, who confessed."

Wong says Poulton had been eagerly awaiting the birth of his first child, but when the happy event came he just couldn't handle it. He felt that the baby didn't like him because he couldn't comfort the little boy, Wong said, but he noticed that the infant stopped crying when his wife held him.

"His wife could calm him but he couldn't get him to stop crying," Wong said. "He felt rejected by the child and he was jealous of the attention his wife gave him.

"He started to bite the child so he would react to him. He bit him on the nose, the chin, on the face. He almost bit through his hand between two fingers. He would dig his fingernails into the baby's back, and he also confessed he squeezed the child's nose hard and put it in cold water to get a reaction."

When she found out what her husband had done, Mrs. Poulton went to the police, who arrested the new dad.

"The child is O.K. now," Wong said. "But the wife is going for divorce."

Animal lovers rip fur coat off its owner

A woman had her $8,000 mink fur coat ripped from her body after she asked directions from three "animal-loving" ladies — who turned out to be animal rights fanatics!

The 27-year-old victim parked her roomy RAV 4 to ask directions from the vegetable trio who were walking on a street in Guildford, England.

One of the "ladies" asked if the coat was real fur and when the unsuspecting woman replied that it was, the trio went berserk.

They ripped the coat off her body screaming shrieks in her face and told her to get back in her car and get out of town.

My Scoutmaster won't keep his mitts off me

Dear Dotti: Please [illegible]rt. I'm an 11-year-old Boy Scout and my problem is my Scoutmaster. [illegible] camping he sits in his tent and drinks a lot. Then he sneaks into my tent and touches me in places I don't think he should be touching.

I really like my Scoutmaster but it scares me when he touches me this way. I'm afraid to tell my parents because they might make me quit Scouts. My friend says my Scoutmaster is sick and I should tell my parents.

Dotti, what should I do? — Unhappy Camper in New Jersey

Dear Unhappy: The letter you sent to me is probably the most important letter you'll ever write. I want you to tell your parents what's going on and make them call the police asap. Your Scoutmaster is very sick. If you're a good boy — and I think you are — you'll blow the whistle before he hurts you or another unsuspecting child.

I'm too petrified to use the potty

Dear Dotti: You're not going to believe this but I'm a 36-year-old woman and I have a terrible fear of toilets. For three years now I haven't been able to use my bathroom. I'm afraid a head will come up and grab me while I'm sitting on the pot. So I go to the bathroom outside.

My husband is ashamed and I don't have anyone over. Help, Dotti. What should I do? — Sitting It Is Bonnie

Dear Sitting: The way I see it you can do one of two things. Arm yourself before you go in the bathroom or use a shovel.

Guilty rich gal can give me her cash

Dear Dotti: Recently a woman wrote to you and said she was embarrassed because she and her husband were rich. If she doesn't want the cash she can give it to me. I have always published her address? I want to write that gal a letter. — Waiting in Sacramento

Dear Waiting: I asked her for money weeks ago. Unfortunately, I'm still waiting for a reply.

My wife answers door in the nude

Dear Dotti: My wife insists on answering the door in the nude and it's driving me crazy. She says she likes to use the expression on the faces of the people who haven't but I think she's suffering from some kind of sickness.

I was just against the door one day and wasn't feeling up to par with my mother and his wife. The moment was startled and said hello and then another time but his wife stood there staring in disbelief.

I continued my wife about her habit but she just laughed in my face. She said she's going to continue answering the door in the nude no matter what I say. What can I do? — Embarrassed to Love

Dear Embarrassed: If your wife wants to answer the door in the buff, tell her to get out of your house and open a brothel. Maybe she already has!

Dotti, you're just got to marry me

Dear Dotti: I'm a 36-year-old divorced trucker and up until recently I was happy this way. Then I saw a picture of you. My question is simple: Will you marry me?

Don't laugh. I believe in [illegible] — don't you? — Love-struck in Texas

HOUSE OF HORRORS SHOCKER!

Daughter slept with mom's corpse — for 3 years!

By JACK ALEXANDER

Doting daughter Norma Scott was so devoted to her beloved mom she didn't bury her when she died — and slept with the corpse for three years.

Grief-stricken Norma, 33, kept her bizarre secret from everyone — including her father, who lived upstairs — in the house of horrors.

The weird tale of the strange family unfolded at an inquest in Newcastle upon Tyne, England.

Health officers broke into the squalid, three-bedroom house after neighbors complained about the unbearable stench.

When they entered Norma, who also was named Norma, had barricaded themselves in the kitchen of the run-down house for years.

Their 17 dogs roamed freely downstairs.

Norma's father, John, lived a separate life upstairs where he had taken refuge from the smog which terrified him.

"Her dad lived above all that up in his own little world away from the sadness and filth downstairs," neighbor Peter Dobson testified at the inquest.

Young Norma told no one — not even her father — when her mother died three years ago.

"The daughter carried on as if nothing had happened and kept the house as it was," coroner Pat Cuff said.

She was evidently too ashamed to tell anyone that her mother had died.

Instead, she slept beside her dead mother's body for three years.

Shocked health officials found the woman's skeletal remains beneath a mountain of trash piled up to the tiny kitchen in Newcastle upon Tyne.

The exact cause of death was undetermined because of the condition of the corpse, but police testified there was no evidence of foul play.

The mother and daughter were "very attached to each other," said coroner Pat Cuff. It is a "most unhappy and disturbing case."

The coroner's inquest determined Mrs. Scott had died of natural causes.

Party-crashing punks trash $million home

. . . because they were bored, say cops

The home — owned by Gloria and Marc Silverman, who moved into the south Florida waterfront community from Scarsdale, N.Y., just three months earlier because it's "quiet and nice."

"At least that's what we thought when we bought the house," Mrs. Silverman explained. "This never happened to us in New York."

The teenagers and the 20-year-olds apparently became "bored" while enjoying one of their weekly beer parties in a field at one of the city's elementary schools.

Having nothing better to do, they decided to crash a party in the Silverman home. They armed themselves with golf clubs they "found" in the Silvermans' garage and, in about 10 minutes, trashed and battered everything in sight.

When it was all over, Silverman's face was left like a fight with a broken nose, the Silvermans' 20-year-old son Jason had a broken nose and thumb, and party guest Justin Plattner had an arm gash inflicted by a golf club. It took 40 stitches to close the wound.

"The problem is, you have a lot of kids who are just bored to death," Principal Norman Sherman of Boca Raton High School is quoted as saying.

"They don't know what to do with themselves. We need to give them something to do so they won't turn to alcohol."

According to Boca Raton Police Sgt. Mike McCutcheon, only one person has been arrested. He is 20-year-old Krystal James Turner, charged with criminal mischief and threatening with a weapon. Both third-degree felonies that carry $5,000 fines and a 5-year jail term.

"There will probably be more arrests," Sgt. McCutcheon told The NEWS.

Traffic drives fed-up trucker to suicide!

A truck driver hanged himself because he was sick of battling traffic on a crowded highway.

Authorities said Michael Byrne, 39, regularly had to drive on England's jam-packed M-25 and finally cracked.

"It's difficult for the ordinary motorist to understand the extra pressures put upon truck drivers in heavy traffic," said highway safety spokesman Andrew Howard.

"They have to think of the damage they would do if they lost their concentration."

Gay pets star on wacky new TV show

. . . and they act just like their fruity owners!

By IRWIN FISHER

A mind-blowing new television show features the swishy life-styles of sissy pets that act just like their gay owners!

In its first four weeks of syndication on Italian television, the program, called Animali Diversi, has starred:

● A parrot that often wears a red skirt and speaks with a lisp.

● A gerbil that refuses to eat without a miniature candelabra beside its food dish and soft music playing in the background.

● A cat that raises its front leg and lets the paw dangle like a limp wrist.

● A monkey that wears a tiny gold ring in each flipper, paisley dinner jacket and several heavy gold chains around its neck.

● A long-haired male guard dog that wears a lady's cape, sunglasses and a dress.

● A chimp that sports pink leg warmers and roller skates while clinging to a silver, heart-shaped balloon.

● A Siamese cat that preens itself in front of a mirror and refuses to leave the house without its whiskers perfumed in a purple sequined sweater.

● A cross-dressing male spider monkey that wears a wig, high heels and slinky black cocktail dress. The creature uses fans and paints its own nails gold.

● Another chimpanzee that clutches flower bouquets and waltz them constantly.

● A rabbit that partially squats and wiggles its behind from side to side when it walks.

● A skittish 15-pound bobcat that perches on a table and yowls in fear at the sight of a small toy mouse.

"Homosexuality exists naturally in the animal kingdom but these pets learned their gay behavior from their gay owners," said Cesare Tondi, who produces the show in Milan.

"We created Animali Diversi to appeal to homosexuals. But heterosexuals like it, too. The show is only a few weeks old but our ratings have gone through the roof."

Several television watchdog groups are unhappy with the show and are threatening to boycott sponsors if it stays on the air. They say the mid-day program "advocates homosexuality" and is nothing more than "animal porn."

"We expected criticism and nobody's going to scare us off the air," said Tondi. "Animali Diversi is all in good fun.

MARIE PATTET: 'I love him.'

Woman marries the man who murdered her mom!

By SCOTTY PAUL

A not-so-heartbroken daughter buried her murdered mom and then married the man who killed her, saying — "I love him for getting the old bat out of my misery."

Marie Pattet, 23, was stabbed 13 times as she slept in her home near Grenoble, France. Two days after the grisly crime, police arrested Michel Galien, 34, a carpenter who was engaged to marry the victim's daughter. Marie. 23.

"It was a ghastly murder. She was butchered with a knife. He stabbed her in the head, neck, eye, chest . . . you name it," said Police Inspector Francois Richeret.

"She was slaughtered like an animal. He wanted to make sure she was dead."

But the brutal slaying of the crippled woman didn't affect her daughter's feelings for her fiancé.

"Actually, I think I love the man even more now," said Marie, as she dreamed for the millionth wedding.

"My mother was a fleeting bitch.

"I've waited on her hand and foot for six years. No matter how much I did for her, it wasn't enough.

"I didn't know whether to jump for joy or cry when I found her dead. After all, she was my mother," said Marie.

Galien said he went berserk when the old woman woke up while he was stealing her jewelry.

"I shot her up real good," he told cops.

Marie and Michel were married in his jail cell in a brief ceremony.

The newlyweds were allowed 30 minutes alone before Marie was asked to leave.

"My friends and neighbors won't speak to me," said Marie. "They think I'm terrible. They don't understand how I could marry him.

"He did me a favor. My mother was going to die anyway.

"Michel just hurried it along. He decided it was time for her to go."

Marie plans to stand by her man even though he could get life in prison for 30 years or more.

"I'll visit him every visitor's day until the end of time," she said. "He's really a very sweet and compassionate man. He just lost his temper that one time."

He may live to be 300, say stunned docs

INCREDIBLY young-looking Oscar Padel was born on June 3, 1967.

MAN, 32, LOOKS LIKE AN 8-YEAR-OLD BOY!

By HENRY WIBLE

Oscar Padel is 32 years old but looks like a boy of 8 — and doctors don't know why the man is aging so slowly.

But they're trying to find out, so they can develop an antiaging drug that will keep everyone young like him.

Medical experts hope to unlock secret that may keep us young forever

"No one is interested in Mr. Padel's outer shell," explained Dr. Jean-Claude Lapaul, the aging expert, told reporters in Geneva, Switzerland. "We want to be able to age at a rate of one year for every four years he does. I've never seen anything quite like it.

"At the rate he's going, I wouldn't be surprised if he lives for 300 years."

Padel was born June 3, 1967 and has the hospital records and birth certificate to prove it, said Dr. Lapaul.

The man appeared to be normal at birth. But he grew very slowly and he didn't take his first steps until he was 4 years old.

He was in diapers until he was 7.

Physicians who examined the boy at the time thought he was retarded and said there was nothing that could be done for him," said Dr. Lapaul.

[illegible] Lapaul's parents were very patient and loving people. They had faith that he would grow and develop and they were right.

"Today, at the age of 32 he looks like a boy of 8. When he's 36 he'll look like a boy of 10. When he's 40 he'll look like a boy of 12.

"It's a most interesting phenomenon," continued the expert. "He has gained many experiences that an 8-year-old boy. But he thanks and acts like one because his ability to absorb and process information is still like that of a child."

Dr. Lapaul and his colleagues are especially testing Padel in the hope of finding out why he ages so slowly. "The experts have yet to find an answer.

Dr. Lapaul believes an antiaging drug can be developed once he and his research team figure out what's keeping Padel so young.

"If adults took such a drug, they would remain young and in their prime for many, many years," the expert said.

Nevada ranch owner plans to open a brothel for love-starved women!

By JACK ALEXANDER

Sex with no strings attached may soon be available for lonely, lustful women at the Mustang Ranch — the nation's most famous whorehouse.

"A lot of women just want to be wined and dined, but believe me they'll want the sex, too," said ranch owner Joe Conforte.

Conforte hopes a stock offering will raise enough cash to build an addition to the ranch, located near Reno, Nev.

He plans to use the proceeds to build a "high class" hideaway where male employees could romance lonely women "who just want sex without entanglements."

"This will be a place for women to have a little fun for a change," said Conforte, whose popular ranch now allows only men in bed down with call-girls employed there.

Conforte tried employing male escorts 14 years ago, but ended the practice when he ordered a separate building was needed for female clients.

"We hope to accommodate women of all ages," said a ranch spokesman.

"Something for everybody will be our goal.

"Surveys show there are thousands of single women in this country with no regulars in their life. They aren't looking for long-term relationships, but are starving, so to speak, for sex.

"We would like to fill that need in their lives partly to ease the fear of AIDS and other diseases.

"Women have just as much right to safe sex as men. And sex at the Mustang Ranch is safe. We see to that."

Tipsy passenger busted twice in the [redacted] day — on both sides of the Atlantic

John Holden went on a drinking binge after four months in bone-dry Saudi Arabia and was arrested twice in one day for drunkenness — on two continents.

By JACK ALEXANDER

The thirsty 31-year-old computer analyst was so drunk and disorderly during a flight from Jiddah to London, England, he had to be tied to his seat until [illegible] the flight landed in London, said cops.

"He was bothering the flight attendants and other passengers. We stopped serving him after four drinks," said Britain Airways spokesman Roger Hayden.

Holden was arrested when the plane landed at London's Heathrow Airport and taken before a judge. He apologized so sincerely to the judge he was fined a small amount and released in time to make his flight home to Boston. He lives in New Bedford, Mass.

"Pretty much the same thing happened all over again during the flight to Boston," said Mrs. Snyder.

Actually, it was a lot worse, according to documents filed in U.S. District Court in Boston.

Midway over the north Atlantic, Holden allegedly got drunk, harassed flight attendants and barged into the cockpit to threaten the captain and crew.

Angry passengers helped crew members restrain the partying passenger.

He was tied to his seat and handcuffed until the flight landed.

The pilot considered an emergency landing in Newfoundland to seek the help of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

But Holden passed out.

Holden regained consciousness but not his composure when the plane landed in Boston. He is accused of biting an FBI agent hard enough to draw blood.

He was jailed in lieu of $50,000 cash bail.

No trial for rapist, 7

A judge has ruled that a 7-year-old boy won't have to stand trial even though he raped a 13-year-old girl.

Judge Judith Wood said in an Ann Arbor, Mich., courtroom that psychological tests showed the boy is "borderline retarded" and not competent to stand trial.

Two 13-year-old boys and two other boys, ages 9 and 8, also were charged with first-degree criminal sexual conduct for aiding the 7-year-old in the rape.

The court ordered counseling for the younger boys but had reached no decision on the fate of the two 13-year-olds.

Glowing UFO looked like a giant steel ball, says pilot

ARTIST'S conception of bright ball-shaped UFO as seen by [illegible]

Man tells of incredible airborne encounter with a speeding starship!

By DICK DONOVAN

Whatever doubts seasoned pilot Bill Kimmel may have had about visitors from outer space vanished like a shot — when he had a startling airborne encounter with a silvery ball-shaped UFO!

"I had never known whether I should or shouldn't believe in UFOs and spaceships," the Mississippi crop duster told The NEWS.

"But that was before I saw what I saw. Now I'm a believer."

And Bill isn't the only one who became a UFO believer. Rev. Father Felix Cooper, a passenger in Bill's plane, and dozens of other people on the ground also saw the shimmering sphere as it streaked through the evening skies.

PILOT Bill Kimmel stands next to the plane he flew when a UFO zoomed across his flight path

Bill, a personable, well-respected veteran of the mysterious UFO, while flying a route in Mississippi to pick up a farm supply chemical.

"It was," Bill said, "one of those clear fall days when you can see forever."

At about 5:30 p.m., 40 miles south of Memphis, Tenn., Bill sighted what appeared to be a bright light in the northeastern sky.

"It was moving like it was trying to get out of the way," he explained. "I could tell it was moving real fast, but I thought it was just a jet."

But within seconds, the object shot across his flight path and Bill knew without a doubt that what he was seeing was weird and different and definitely not any kind of a jet plane he knew of.

"It was a round metallic ball about twice the size of a light, twin-engine plane. It had no wings, no windows. No wings. No tail. Nothing at all. It looked like a big, silver basketball.

"I saw it for about 10 to 15 seconds and when it passed me, I estimated it was traveling at between 700 to 800 miles an hour.

Rev. Father Cooper, another Greenville-area crop duster, said he saw pretty much the same thing a few days earlier.

"I took up and saw this thing," he said.

"It moved quickly to the right, then to the left. It was round, [illegible] and about 90 feet wide."

Some experts believe the UFO was nothing more than the planet Venus, which often looks like it's moving because of an optical illusion created by gases in Earth's atmosphere.

Bill Kimmel merely chuckled when he heard that.

Med schools howling for more corpses

More than 3 million people die each year in the United States, but there still aren't enough bodies to satisfy medical schools.

The reason for the shortage is unclear, according to John Scudda, who finds cadavers for 127 medical schools.

Some folks say funeral homes are burying more unclaimed bodies because city limits and states are raising the amount of burial allowance.

Plucky pooch survives 19 days in sewer pipe

By DICK DONOVAN

A flop-eared beagle named Diablo was so skinny as a rail and stunk like a skunk. But he still had his tail a-wagging — after being trapped for 19 harrowing days in a sewer!

Diablo was 43 pounds when he fell in — and 19 pounds when he came out!

The spunky 6-year-old hound apparently had fallen in to an uncovered concrete sewer pipe as a field near his home in Riverville, Calif.

Diablo lost 24 pounds during his 19-day ordeal and would have died down there in the dark, dank depths of the sewer had it not been for the chance passing of Patty Miller, who was running her own two dogs in the field.

"It was starting to get cold and I don't think he would have lasted much longer," 40-year-old Patty told The NEWS. "I don't usually go by that area.

"Well, my dogs were running around and I thought I heard a kind of echo sound. Then my dog Honey pricked up her ears and ran into some tall grass. I followed and I heard a little bark. That's when I found the open sewer pipe.

"I looked into the hole and I saw a little dog face looking back at me. I talked to it and I could see it was alive, so I went to a phone to get help.

"We called the fire department," Patty said. "They put a ladder down and brought Diablo up. The dog looked so grateful, but its tail was wagging like crazy."

"It's amazing that he's O.K.," said grateful owner, Gina Jackson.

90-year-old guns down brother and wife in their bed, cops say

An elderly bedhead and wife were brutally murdered as (he) slept together in bed — and the accused killer is the dead victim's 86-year-old brother!

Michael Palcone is charged, murder in the shooting deaths of Dennis and Adelaide Palcone, an adoring 81-year-old couple. The Palcones recently celebrated their 58th wedding anniversary [illegible] Pa.

with two counts of first-degree

police said Michael Palcone shot each of his sleeping victims in the head at close range with a .45-caliber revolver.

"There had been a family squabble," police spokesman Nancy Young told The NEWS. "The motive was that he thought the couple was trying to poison him."

The tragic double murder — and the arrest of Michael as the killer — has shocked the neighborhood where the [illegible] Palcones had shared a home for 30 years.

"These people were dedicated, caring people," said Carmen Mallory, whose mother-in-law lives next door to the Palcone home.

"When it snowed, they would shovel the walk for my mother-in-law."

Police said Michael Palcone's fear of being poisoned had been festering for some time. And longtime friend Vincent Calogeras said Danny Palcone had talked about it only recently.

"Danny said his brother had been acting funny the last couple of weeks," Calogeras said. "He wouldn't go out of the house and he wouldn't eat, either.

"Who knows what could have triggered him off?"

The grieving friend said Danny had worked in his funeral home for 30 years while faithfully nursing her ailing wife Adelaide.

"He'd take her to the beauty parlor or to the mall for a walk," Calogeras said with tears welling in his eyes. "When she wasn't well enough to go out, he'd drive down to the Melrose Diner and bring something back to her.

"No husband loved a wife any better than him."

Dead knight's armor walks by itself!

HAUNTED suit of armor stalked the dark, say witnesses

Ghost of man murdered 400 years back for [redacted] experts

University experts are investigating reports that an ancient suit of armor walks through the quiet of a country mansion vowing vengeance on a family who died out more than 300 years ago.

By DAMON RAY

Scared-to-death villagers in and around historic Kerlot, France, have long believed that the unoccupied 16th century estate was haunted.

But it wasn't until historian Michel Gallais claimed to have heard the voice of the vengeful spirit himself that qualified researchers took notice.

And now, with two months of a planned six-month study behind them, the experts believe they can prove that the espionage is the ghastly work of Bernard Dalry — who was killed by a member of a rival family in 1588.

"The rivalry between the Bruhn and Dalry families of the 16th century is thoroughly documented in historical texts," said Dr. Gallais, who is heading up the research team.

In a letter to the science journal New Tomorrows, Dr. Gallais said Dalry's clanking armor has walked on its own accord three times in the past two months.

"The walking is always accompanied by a loud moaning sound and the message is always the same. 'Death to the family of Bruhn!,'" he said.

Strangely enough, the last male heir of the Bruhn family died in 1788. "The family is dead," said Dr. Gallais.

"But the spirit of Dalry, if that is what we are dealing with, still seeks his revenge."

Henri Mars, a graduate student assisting Dr. Gallais in the investigation, has speculated that Dalry is trapped in a void between life and death.

"It could very well be that he is a prisoner of his own hatred," he said.

Having satisfied themselves that something unearthly is happening in the mansion, the experts now hope to photograph the walking armor and spirit on

Spoiled kid, 11, tricks her parents into divorce court

Brat did it because she was bored!

By MICHAEL TODD

After accusing each other of being unfaithful, a wealthy couple squared off in divorce court — where their spoiled daughter suddenly stood up and admitted she got her parents to split up "just for fun."

Mouths dropped and eyebrows were raised in the crowded courtroom as 11-year-old Tina Hagland strode up to the judge's bench and announced that she had tricked each of her parents into believing that the other was carrying on an affair.

"I only did it because I was bored," the girl said. "It was just for fun. I never, ever thought it would come to this."

Swedish industrialist Lars Hagland and his attractive wife, Greta, filed for divorce in Karlstad on grounds of adultery after 13 years of marriage. According to court records, Mrs. Hagland became suspicious of her husband when he returned from business trips with makeup smudges on his white shirts.

The 39-year-old woman also said there were several florist charges on her husband's credit card bill for flowers she never received.

Tina admitted using her father's credit card number to order roses by phone, sending flowers anonymously to women whose names she picked randomly from the phone book.

Tina also admitted buying makeup and leaving traces of it on the clothes in her father's suitcase whenever he returned from a business trip.

To keep her father on his toes, Tina used she bought men's neckties and socks and secretly planted them in her parents' bedroom for her dad to find.

Judge Fredrick Mantrom dismissed the divorce suit.

"If Tina were my daughter, she wouldn't be able to sit down for a week," the

COOK IN YOUR DISHWASHER

Chef's easy recipes

By JOHN HANNON

Master Chef Tom MacKinnon needs no fancy ranges or newfangled microwave ovens — he cooks a full-course meal in his dishwasher!

"If you really want to get into it it works great," he says. "It's excellent for food that likes low, gentle cooking. The fish will be unbelievable. And I guarantee you won't have anything too dry."

Before you rush to your kitchen meet the crafty cook who works at MacKinnon's Restaurant in Northside, Mich. suggests you follow these tips.

Rinse your dishwasher (check that it's running temperature) by wrapping the glass until a meal is completed in a plastic bag and put it through a cycle. Check it a few times. A dishwasher that holds temperatures of 140 to 150 degrees Fahrenheit is ideal for cooking.

Put food in clip-lock plastic bags and make sure the seal is tight.

Fish, chicken, turkey and shrimp recipes work great.

Veggies should be sliced thin. But whatever you do — hold the soap! If you're really worried about eating too little zinc, a partial recipe follows.

And if you eat the first course, the meal will come out well.

Here are some of Chef MacKinnon's recipes created exclusively for NEWS readers.

Chickenhearted hubby hides in attic from mother-in-law . . . for three years!

By JACK ALEXANDER

Domineering mom Iris Bodington thought her daughter, Karen, was separated from Doggett. She didn't know they'd patched up their differences because of the upswing this Christmas Day wandering the streets of Glen Ferry. England.

At last, away from his family for good, Doggett hit the pilot for six hours while his wife and two kids by whom he was not. Another Christmas. Doggett lot in the attic for six hours while his mother-in-law enjoyed the day with his wife and two kids.

Parents get shocking warning:

SATAN IS STEALING OUR CHILDREN

HOW SATAN is robbing the souls of more and more kids are turning to devil worship as a means of rebelling against their parents' authority — or just for kicks.

Kids everywhere are flocking to the devil, says expert

By MARTHA ATKINS

Satanism is sweeping the country — it's attracting a lot of — who want to rebel against their parents, an expert warns.

"Many kids join out of curiosity," said Cynthia Kisser, who's executive director of the Chicago-based Cult Awareness Network. "They're looking for thrills and a way to rebel against their parents."

Watch out for these sinister symbols:

She says devil worship was virtually unheard of a few years ago but now incidents of cemetery desecrations, anti-Christian graffiti, animal sacrifices, self-mutilation and occasional suicides and murders are multiplying.

It's terrorizing, said Miss Kisser. We handle about 1,400 calls a month across the about cults and 10 to 25 percent of them relate to satanism specifically.

A group of kids will get together and buy a book that tells them how to cast spells," she said. "And then they think these spells will help them get what they want through power. When they sacrifice an animal, it's to get the power that they believe a dying animal releases into the blood. They'll then take the blood and drink it or use it in ritual spells because they believe it will give them power.

"They'll often mix alcohol and drugs with satanism. It's just another way for them to party."

The Cult Awareness Network gives the following warning signs parents should watch for:

- Bitter hatred toward family and family religion.
- Drastic drop in grades.
- Cuts or tattoo marks on the body.
- Little or middle fingernail on left hand painted black. (Left is evil, right is good.)
- Involvement with alcohol or drugs.
- Seeing unusually secretive should-be friends and associates.
- Satanic symbols used to decorate a room, trash or tattooed on body.
- Serious misdemeanor such as vandalism or cruelty to animals.

If parents do find that their child has one or more of the warning signs, they shouldn't automatically jump to the conclusion that he's heavily involved. "Check out the situation before you jump to conclusions. Don't accuse and confront your child about his activities," said Miss Kisser.

"If you're concerned about what he's doing, talk about it with him."

Baldy tries to shoot hair clinic boss

. . . when treatment doesn't work!

By JACK ALEXANDER

Bald-headed Robert Moore blamed the president of a hair clinic because he couldn't grow hair — and tried to kill him, cops said.

"He had the same sick reasoning murder that he had growing hair," said Suffolk County, N.Y., Police Det. Sgt. Arthur Abt.

Moore, 37, obsessed with going bald, was convinced that minoxidil, a hair-growth drug, had caused him to develop a heart condition, cops said.

Wearing a toupee and sporting a beard and straight razor, Moore went to the Aragon Hair Clinic in Farmingdale, Long Island, for revenge, according to police.

"He had a 38-caliber revolver hidden under a newspaper when he went into the office of clinic president Joseph Dudenas," said Sgt. Abt.

Dudenas and another employee spurned the gun and wrestled it away from Moore, whose wig fell off as the hair-raising racist, cops said. Then Moore took out a straight razor and tried to stab Dudenas, but they pinned him to the floor until police arrived.

Supporters of the clinic described Moore as a lonely man who lived by himself.

"He is about 5-foot-6 and weighs a cuddly 140 pounds," said Sgt. Abt. "He has a thing about being bald. And his toupee was obvious.

"It was lying on the floor when we got there. He asked if he could get his hairpiece back so badly we took him to jail. We gave him that," said Sgt. Abt.

No one was injured during the incident. Moore was charged with attempted murder.

Today it's AIDS — but in 1900 it was another terrifying disease

Typhoid Mary served death on a platter!

As the 20th century slips into its final decade, the fear of AIDS runs rampant through America. But back at the dawn of the 1900s, it was another killer disease that terrified the nation — and it was spread by a good-natured Irish cook who was dubbed Typhoid Mary!

By SICK DONOVAN

Her real name was Mary Mallon, and although much in demand for her cooking skills, she never stayed very long in any one place. And for good reason. Her culinary specialty was death.

The saga of Mary Mallon began in 1900, when a murderous typhoid outbreak struck Mamaroneck, N.Y. — mystery was behind the fatal water supply there was shown conclusively to be the work of one cook. Typhoid germs enter the body through tainted food and drink.

In 1906, seven people were killed by the fever in the home of J. Coleman Drayton in Dark Harbor, Maine. In 1904, typhoid visited the home of Henry Gibney in Sands Point, Long Island, and hostess in Cherry Hill and Tuxedo Park, N.Y.

Health Department officials were advertised a startling fact. Fair-haired Typhoid Mary Mallon had been a cook in each of the plague-struck homes.

By the time she was tracked down, New York City was in the grip of an epidemic. When told the weight of the corpse of the plague, Mary snatched up a rolling pin and chased [illegible] out of the house.

Nevertheless, she was taken into custody and examined by experts. Then the truth was confirmed. Doctors branded her "a walking epidemic." The press tagged her with the sick name that would stay with her to the grave — Typhoid Mary. After three escapes from custody, she was transferred to a hospital on North Brother Island in New York's East River. After a long legal battle, she was allowed to regain custody on the promise that she never again prepare or handle food for others.

But the case received her career as a dramatic plague prophesy kept in check, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Cripple freezes to death when his wheelchair gets stuck in mud!

By SUSAN JIMISON

Two buddies from a rehabilitation center went out for fresh air and wound up stranded for a night in freezing temperatures — when their motorized wheelchairs got stuck in the mud!

Quadriplegic Alan Rogers, 40, died of exposure during the 16-hour ordeal but his roommate, William Fuller, survived without ill effects.

"We screamed for help, but no one could hear us," said Fuller, 38, a resident of the Apple Tree Lane Rehabilitation Center in Romulus, Mich. "We were only 100 yards away from the facility but most people were inside because of the cold.

"We knew it would be a long time before they found us. But I had no idea Alan had died. He was alive and talking to me until just before the police came to rescue us at 8 o'clock the next morning."

Rogers and Fuller, who is paralyzed from the neck down, had taken off for a spin in their motorized wheelchairs on the afternoon of November 30. The minus temperatures were [illegible] mud and the [illegible] explore a little [illegible] past their rehab center.

Rogers had used the trail a few days before without problems, but the cold weather had thawed the soil under the gravel path, turning it to mud. As Fuller wheeled along the trail, the front wheels of his chair sank through the gravel into the mud and his rear wheels became stuck as he tried to retrieve himself.

"I told Alan to keep still, go easy, but he got stuck too almost 20 feet down the trail," Fuller recalled. That night the temperature plunged and the two men shivered from the cold.

"We could hear people shouting as they would walk by, but they couldn't see us because it was so dark," Fuller explained. "I kept telling Alan to hang on, that help was coming. And we talked . . . each other from time to time. Alan said, 'We got ourselves into a good mess this time, didn't we?' I said, 'Yes, but the first one to freeze to death is the loser!'"

But toward dawn, Rogers became quiet. By the time a report was made that the men were missing and the two stranded quadriplegics were found by police, Rogers was dead. Incredibly, Fuller was found to be in good shape by doctors at the rehabilitation center.

"Alan was lighter than me, so I guess that put him at a disadvantage," said Fuller who wants to write a book on wheelchair safety in memory of his friend. "I miss him. He was a very good buddy."

Mom sues school for not making teen [redacted] to class

A mom's suing to bring the school officials for $3,500 — because they couldn't make her daughter go to school!

Peggy Gibbs, 40, is asking for the damages because she's gotten no help from the school in forcing her daughter, Cheryl Ann Gordon, 16, to attend class.

"I'm tired of parents hiding the blame," said Mrs. Gibbs of Deerfield Beach, Fla. "The school is now doing the job that it's handing the ball by not forcing Cheryl to go to school."

School officials were shocked. They say it's their job to notify parents when a child has unexcused absences, but believe it's the parents responsibility to motivate their children to attend school.

Famed spoon bender stops a clock in London

PSYCHIC Uri Geller took on Big Ben from 30 miles away.

Top psychic freezes Big Ben in mid-tick

Super psychic Uri Geller focused the incredible power of his mind on London's famous Big Ben — and the giant clock stopped in mid-tick at 11:07 in the morning.

By WILLIAM HAMILTON

Authorities reported that the landmark clock was part of [illegible] when Geller concentrated on it from his back garden 30 miles away at Tonbridge, England.

"I stood in the little hospice at the bottom of my garden [illegible] and sat down on the spot where I [illegible] After five minutes struggling [illegible] concentrated on the face of Big Ben in my mind for seven minutes, saying to myself 'Stop, Stop.'"

The giant tower clock ground to a halt under the powerful beam of Geller's mind.

For only the second time since Big Ben was started 131 years ago, the huge gilt minute [illegible] stopped moving. Geller, who has stunned audiences around the world with his ability to bend spoons, keys and other objects with his mind, pulled off the ultimate psychic feat. He says he was challenged to stop the big clock by a newspaper that is producing a round globe under his name.

"The company originally asked me to stop Big Ben at 11:59 on New Year's Eve," Geller said. "But I didn't want to spoil everyone's New Year's Eve — so I decided to do it before New Year's, on December 28.

"After I concentrated, I had other things to do that day and totally forgot about it. Then my wife Hanna told me that the clock HAD stopped. I asked the neighbor kid they sent me a message here saying, 'Wow! We know you could do it.'"

Scientists scaled the face of the tower clock and repaired it [illegible] after Geller's amazing feat. It was ticking away again four hours later.

LONDON'S Big Ben was stopped for four hours after psychic Uri Geller concentrated on stopping it.

Critters eat like kings!

Bigshot treats 400 monkeys to gourmet feast

Yikes. Yikes! This hungry monkey digs into a huge bowl of banana cake during the banquet. The all-out bash cost $12,000.

. . . and they go ape!

By JOE HERBER

A moneybags businessman celebrated the first anniversary of his ritzy new hotel by cooking up a tempting, 12-course feast — for 400 hungry monkeys!

The tickled critters dined off white linen and fine china, gobbling up enormous helpings of sweet and sour noodles, potato soup, tomato cocktail, fried rice, banana cake and a dozen other delectable edibles.

"It was the strangest thing I ever saw, all those monkeys eating in grander style than most people ever do," said flabbergasted British tourist Roger Lurcock.

"They were hopping from one table to the next, from one platter to the next, eating everything in sight. When anybody got too close, the monkeys would hurl food or soft drink cans at them to keep them away."

Hotel boss Yongyut Kawatjananquan tossed the bash for his furry friends to mark the first birthday of his lavish Lopburi Inn in Lopburi, Thailand. The monkeys are good luck symbols in Lopburi, where they live like kings in ten of the city's fanciest temples.

"I prepared a lovely feast for them to make sure they would continue to bless my family and my hotel," said the superstitious tycoon.

It cost me 20,000 bahts ($12,000), but it was worth it to see them having such a good time."

The hotel's gourmet chefs spent two days whipping up the mouth-watering meal before a solemn matre d' escorted the 400 honored guests into the banquet hall.

"These monkeys get one look at all that food and just went crazy," said waiter Patanin Pothorn.

"They screamed and ran for the food like a bunch of starving kids. We just kept bringing the platters out and they just kept coming.

"They seemed to love the banana cake. I don't think they got a lot of banana cake.

"By the time we took them back to the temple, most of them were so full they could barely walk. I understand they all curled up and slept for hours — while we stayed to clean up the mess they made in the dining room."

Cow perfume is an udder delight

Scientists have found a new way to treat milk production in cows — by spraying them with perfume!

When the animals are sprayed with anise oil, a licorice-scented fragrance, they feel more at ease and give more milk, said researchers Keith Cummins and Lawrence Myers at Auburn University.

"People find humor in this," said Cummins. "I try to emphasize that this has a serious application."

He said dairy cows have to be regrouped every few weeks to maximize production, and this forces them to re-establish their "pecking order." That results in a lot of hitting and shoving, which makes the cows upset, causing milk production to drop. The anise spray reduces aggression, said Cummins.

Re-volt-ing comeback

Electroshock therapy was all but discredited as a treatment for depression in the 1960s but now it's back — and bigger than ever!

"In the 1950s and 1970s it was certainly relegated to the bottom of the barrel as a treatment of last resort only," said Dr. Matthew Rudorfer, head of electroshock research at the National Institute of Mental Health in Bethesda, Md.

"Now the feeling that the treatment works against people has pretty much fallen by the wayside."

Dr. Robert Temple, vice president of the Sheppard and Enoch Pratt Hospital in Towson, Md., was even more emphatic. "For particular indications, nothing works as well as electroshock therapy," said Dr. Temple.

Man gives $200M back to customers

The head of an investment corporation is returning $200 million dollars to his clients with a note saying, "Sorry I can't invest your money any longer!"

Paul Tudor Jones II, who heads Tudor Investment Corp., says he's giving the money back because his funds have gotten too big for him to produce superior returns for his clients.

Over the last five years, his magic touch has given a twenty-fold return on investors' money, mainly from speculating in futures and currency markets.

"Our goal has never been to be the biggest, our goal is to perform well," said Jones.

STUPID RUSSIAN ALMOST CAUSES WORLD WAR 3

. . . when he tries to fix missile computer with a hammer!

A dimwitted Russian technician almost started World War 3 when he tried to repair a missile computer with a hammer and can of oil!

Dr. Heremann Frank, an East German computer scientist now living in the West, said the technician put 12 nuclear missiles into a launch mode when he pounded the computer with his hammer and squirted oil on a circuit board.

By BARRY SIMMS

"We were seconds away from World War 3," Dr. Frank told newsmen in Paris. "Those missiles were aimed at strategic sites in America and Western Europe.

"If we hadn't been able to override the computer and take the missiles out of launch sequence, they would have fired and there would have been no bringing them back.

The scary thing is that this Soviet technician is not the exception. He is one of hundreds of poorly trained Russian technicians who are assigned to missile bases throughout the Soviet Union." Dr. Frank said the incident occurred last August at a missile base near the Ural Mountains. Not surprisingly, Soviet officials denied the expert's allegations.

They went on to call Soviet technicians and scientists "the finest in the world today."

Soviet military insiders wouldn't have disagreed more. They privately acknowledged that Soviet boss Mikhail Gorbachev is gravely concerned about Soviet technical know-how.

They further stated that he ordered a massive investigation into missile bases and personnel after the incident in the Urals last summer. "The specter of nuclear war is frightening enough without having to worry about an accidental missile

seen heaven beautiful'

By MICHAEL TODD

Hard-luck laborer Javier Aller lay in a coma for two heartbreaking years, then he awoke just long enough to plead for a chance to die — so his soul could enter the gates of glory!

"Please kill me," the tragic 27-year-old begged nurses and family members gathered around his hospital bed in Barcelona, Spain.

"I have seen heaven and it is beautiful, but they won't let me in . . . I am trapped outside in a terrible mist . . . I can't take it anymore . . . Please, please let me die."

Aller — who has been on a life support system since he was crushed by a crate of machine parts in September 1987 — lapsed into unconsciousness a few minutes later.

But the Spanish press reports that he was awake long enough to give one of the most vivid descriptions of heaven and the afterlife ever recorded.

"I was a little boy again and Aunt Maria was with me," the young man told his family.

"She led me into the tunnel of light that leads to heaven.

"And she told me, 'What you seek is the peace of eternity. And this is where we will find it.' The light grew brighter and whiter as she spoke. I covered my eyes but she pulled back my hand.

"When she did I could see that we were both standing in an enormous room, like a church, and through the open ceiling the brilliant radiance of heaven and the angels and the people who have gone to heaven before us shone like a thousand suns. For many moments we were speechless. And while we stood in wonderful pipe organ carried around us.

"I reached out but they did not see me. My soul burned to join them but there wasn't time. They vanished in the mist and Aunt Maria whispered: 'Not now.'"

Far from comforting his family, the young man's gut-wrenching plea for death touched off a bitter feud.

His parents urged doctors to pull the plug on their son as he requested — while his grieving wife Helena Cheetham used to use to keep her helpless husband alive.

"My poor boy is caught between life and death," his distraught father Francisco Aller told reporters. "He can see the heavenly gates but cannot get in.
